

Abe Arguello

Coach Arguello comes to TWHS after being the head baseball coach and associate athletic director at Royal High School in Brookshire, Texas for the last 5 years. His high energy and passion for the game makes most who know him say he is a “players coach”.

Abe has been a Texas High School baseball coach now for 15 years and has had head coaching stops at Westside High School and Westbury Christian School. He has been an assistant coach under one of his mentors Jorge Garza at Lamar high school.

Coach Arguello has had two stops at the collegiate level at the University of Houston and Texas A&M Kingsville. At the University of Houston he played for and worked for another mentor his head coach Rayner Noble. He experienced Championships at U of H in 1997, 1999, 2006, 2008. As the recruiting coordinator at Texas A&M Kingsville in 2013, he helped assemble one of the best teams in school history that came one out away from the Division II College World Series.

Having coached many talented players along the way, Coach Arguello has been blessed to have over 25 former players play collegiate and professional baseball. He has been blessed to have coached and respects Daniel Mengden and Anthony Rendon, two big leaguers that taught him so much as a young coach.

Abe is a 1993 graduate of Lamar high school where he had the honor and privilege to play for THWS head coach Ron Eastman. He proceeded to play at Texarkana Jr. College under current Texas A&M head coach Rob Childress and complete his playing days at the University of Houston where he received a bachelor’s degree in Health and Human Performance.

Coach Arguello is the proud father of two children, Christopher (25) and Melanie (17) and loves spending time with his dog Hawken.
